Connecting Google Scholar to Milner's Find It

Activating Find It Locating Find It Link in Results Generating Citations

1 Show Milner's 2 Find It Link in Google Sch 3

You can make the Milner Library Find It link Find It @ ISU appear in your Google Scholar search results, so that you can click it to find out if Milner has print or online access to articles you found on Google Scholar. If Milner does not have access, submit an Interlibrary Loan request (a FREE service). The Find It menus have an Interlibrary Loan option that you can use to login to interlibrary loan, which will pre-fill the request form with the information about the article. You can also login to your Milner Library Interlibrary Loan account and fill out a request form.

1. Go to Google Scholar, click Sign In, and login with your Google account username and password.
2. Click the icon showing three horizontal bars in the upper left corner of the screen to get the Google Scholar menu.

3. Click Settings.

NOTE: My library is NOT related to connecting Google Scholar to Milner Library. Instead, it is your personal collection of saved search results.

STEP 3: Select the (2) Locating Find it Link in Results tab. Read the short section.

STEP 4: Select the (3) Generating Citations tab. Read the short section.

STEP 5: Using Google Scholar, look for the following articles:

- i. Predictive Analytics for Readmission of Patients with Congestive Heart Failure
- ii. On the Longitudinal Effects of IT Use on Firm-Level Employment
- iii. Coping Responses in Phishing Detection: An Investigation of Antecedents and Consequences

For each of the 3 articles submit 3 things:

1. A PDF of the article
2. Using Google Scholar, copy and paste the APA citation for the article.
3. A screenshot showing Find it @ ISU for the article.

Here is an Example

Imagine that I had asked you to find the article “Effects of Online Recommendations on Consumers’ Willingness to Pay.” I did not, so do not submit this one.

1st, I would go to Google Scholar and search for the article.

Google Scholar

Effects of online recommendations on consumers' willingness to pay
G. Adomavicius, J.C. Bockstedt ... - Information Systems ..., 2018 - pubsonline.informs.org

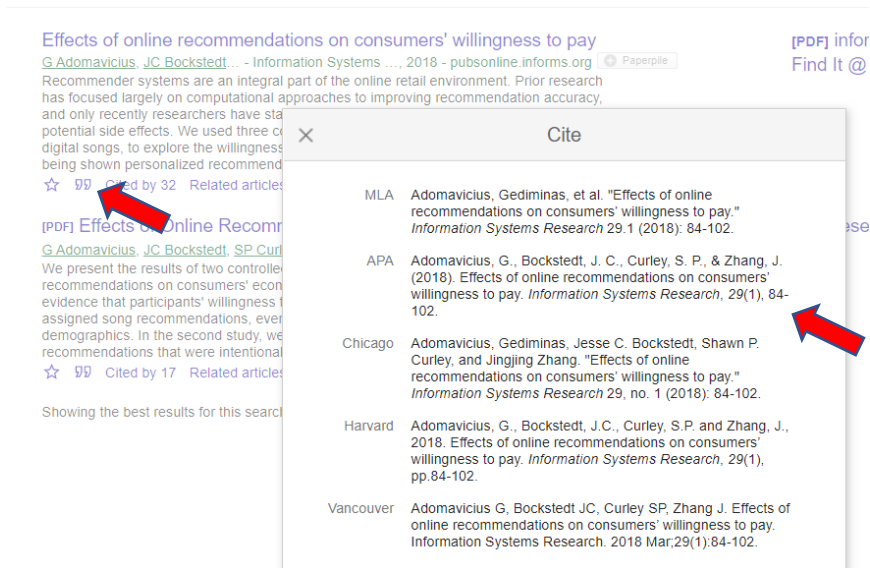

Recommender systems are an integral part of the online retail environment. Prior research has focused largely on computational approaches to improving recommendation accuracy, and only recently researchers have started to study their behavioral implications and potential side effects. We used three controlled experiments, in the context of purchasing digital songs, to explore the willingness-to-pay judgments of individual consumers after being shown personalized recommendations. In Study 1, we found strong evidence that ...

Next, I would select  to get copies of the citations (in several formats) for the article.

I would copy the APA format.

The screenshot shows a 'Cite' dialog box with a list of citation formats. The APA format is highlighted. A red arrow points to the APA format, and another red arrow points to the 'Find It @ ISU' link in the top right corner of the dialog box.
